Valentine's Day

The story behind the day

Many people celebrate Valentine's Day every year, but not everyone knows the story behind this special day. Valentine's Day is named after Saint Valentine, a man who lived a long time ago. There are different stories about him, but one legend is the most popular and easiest to understand.

The story takes place in ancient Rome. At that time, Rome had a powerful emperor. He believed that married men were not good soldiers. Because of this, he made a rule: young men were not allowed to get married. Many people were unhappy, because they wanted to marry the person they loved.

Saint Valentine was a priest. He believed that love and marriage were very important. He did not agree with the emperor's rule. Valentine wanted to help young couples who were in love. He secretly married them, even though it was dangerous. He did this quietly, at night or in private places.

After some time, the emperor found out about Valentine's actions. Valentine was arrested and sent to prison. Even in prison, he was kind and helpful. According to the legend, Valentine talked to people, listened to their problems, and helped them feel better. Some stories say that he also helped the prison guard and his family.

One story says that Valentine became friends with the prison guard's daughter. She was very sad, and Valentine wrote her kind messages. Before he died, Valentine sent her a letter and signed it "From your Valentine." Many people believe this is the first Valentine's message.
